

Consultant of manufacturing and development of ready-made clothes,

Research title using modern techniques for managing training process in the field of traditional clothes.

Researcher name / Seham Fathy Shokly,

(PhD) in Fashion and Textiles,

Abstract

Introduction:

In the last years, training techniques have grown and developed, and this declared in many fields and samples, which contributed in the promotion of the training process and delivering it with a perfect way to the trainee. Also, those techniques and instruments are achieving a group of facilities to the trainee which would help in achieving the training goals.

Research issue:-

There are some individual differences between trainees, they are different in their mental capabilities and preparations because some of them appear ready for theoretical explanations when others can't reach the idea through this explaining, and they need help from other innovated technical instruments so this information can be solidified and won't be forgettable. Also there will be an active way to receive the information and the ease of meaning realization through personification of ideas by tangible training instruments.

Research goal:- This research aims to identify the modern techniques and its importance to reach to the maximum benefit for the trainee through the training process.

Research results:

- Modern techniques usage is helping in training on heritage garment industry and diversity the means, these techniques to facilitate access to information to the trainee and make the training process more exciting, which led to attract the attention of the trainee and his interest in training on modern machines.
- Modern techniques in the field of training for the heritage garment industry have contributed to the self-reliance of the trainee to obtain the training through the different technical means in these fields, which led to the spread of self-training which depends on the trainee only without the coach but through the multiple means of modern techniques.

Obtaining a trainee who has the ability to deal with modern techniques and advanced means in the field of training on the garment industry with positive participation and has more impact information and perceives its sensory meaning through visual embodiment

DOI:10.12816/0044292