

Egypt cemeteries between the populated and the written (documentary, civilized study)

Inspired by Ibn El-safy message "benefits in mentioning Mokattam hill in Egypt"

Dr./Mamdouh Mohamed Al-sayed Hassanin

Islamic archeology and arts department-faculty of archeology-Aswan university

Abstract;

The research aims to realize and analyze a message included in Essa son of Essa El-safy manuscript "benefits in mentioning Mokattam hill in Egypt" which may be published for the first time. The study tried to add concept and new specific identification to studying and analyzing the manuscript science by posing the manuscript which is a meant metaphor and analogy to what should be when studying the manuscript from all its sides like what is happening in anthropology the science that is concerned with studying everything relating to human. which has been applied in this research while studying this particular manuscript.

Based on that we have extracted all information and all civilized, political, social, religious, and cultural signs in addition to environmental and geographical study etc...

To show how effective the writings and the sayings of historian about the constructional development to the graves domes that have been spread all over Egypt cemeteries.