

Restoration of material and moral values of internal holes
Of Mamluk houses with historical values
As example ( the house of Ahmed Al razaz)

Ass.proff.dr/ Ashraf Hussin Ibrahim

Ass.proff.dr/ Ahmed Samir Kamel

Researcher /Mayada Mohamed Salah El-din Kamel

Internal design and furniture department –faculty of applied art-Helwan university

Introduction;

Mamluk age known with unusual architectural and artistic renaissance .the Mamluk house was connected to social,economical and political life as well as common traditions and religion which reflected on planning the house and the elements it contains. As affected by such circumstances ,the increase of disturbances and ravish was the reason the had to strictly separate between men and women ,which cause the creation of new elements suit the new purposes which have moral and functional values help in the formation of outer and internal holes to the house of the historical value.

Research problem;

- 1- Lack of methodology of connection between the house ( with it's moral and material values) and the area population
- 2- Loss of interaction between the house internal holes and the environmental and social surrounding

Research aim;

Putting methodology to dealing with internal holes to houses with historical values that include different dimensions (environmental, economical, social)

Which appears in the moral and material values of the holes.