Islamic Arabian civilization is basically rely on Arabic language. The Arabic language before the descending of holy Quran was the language of poetry and prose and doesn't extend to other creations or multiple arts, but descending the Quran in Arabic and no other language qualified Arabic to be language of civilization and depends on science, thinking and literature so it turned into language where the Indian civilizations, Greek culture and modern science that spread at the 16th century A.D. transferred to it. Then major development has happened to the Arabic language thanks to those variable international cultures. The Arab scientists of all species created some wonderful, modern science that lit up the sides of the world and established advanced, modern and international civilization which was and still generous branch to contemporary international human civilization which one of the orientalist said about it" if it wasn't for Arabic Islamic civilization, the contemporary international civilization would have been delayed for many centuries".

This research aims to uncover the role of Arabic language in Islamic Arabian civilization and how this language was able to absorb all the previous international civilizations before it. And the creativity of the new science and arts in Arabic, which became the base and the tongue of this civilization.

Recently in the international field appeared new concepts and expressions such as: globalization – constellation-universalization –Arabization which all promise the birth of new world that will be considered as universal village.

Along time ago the Arabian thinker said" the world is my village,to do the good that is my religion".

The globalization and cooperation between mankind is an idea represented by Islam the ending religion that invited all humans as it is mercy to all people. That has its clear effect on Arabic from multiple sides that the research reveals,beside the relation between Arabic and English, French, Spanish, Russian, and Chinese languages which is considered relative development in the relation of international organization with people around the world.

The united nation considers the 18th of December each year is international day to celebrate the Arabic language to ensure its role in the making of the human civilization ,that represents initiation towards linguistic pluralism, cultural variation and promoting to the use of the six official languages in the U.N.

French language celebration day is 20th of March each year.

English language celebration day is on 23rd of April each year.

Russian language celebration day is on 6th of June each year.
