

The Role of Textile Wall Hanging In Achieving Aethetical And Functional Values In the Internal Architecture Of The rapeutic Institutions.

Dr Ghalia El Shenawy

Abstract:

The art of textile hanging is considered one of the richest and most sophisticated Arts in the fine arts sector. As it is one of the oldest and most famous applied arts, which has highly aethetic and artistic values because it helps in completing the interior architectural design and it is an important mean in adding aethetic values to public buildings and houses besides it is used in covering wide areas of empty walls. By studying the human harvest in this field, it was found that textile hanging designs were always considered the reflection of its era and its culture and artistic fields. hangings do not differ in its aimes from wall graphic but it is more different and accurate compared to graphics as it needs skills in the implemmentation stage. the presented study gives one entry to enrich the art of wall hangings by studing the beauty of human inner cells to enrich the aethetical and functional values of the textile hangings used in the interior walls of medical treatment institutions. In this research many designs for textile hangings were made and four of them were produced using half- mechanicsl tuft technique and all of them were inspired from human inner cells.