

The mutual relation between Chinese and Islamic civilizations.

Dr./Mohamed Mohyee El-Dien Mahmoud

Manufacturing design department-faculty of applied art-BaniSweif university

The research problem;

Some of the believers who adopt extreme and closed way of thinking call for underestimating the others and looking down at them, and justifying that with our belonging to Islam which is the highest ranking religion and Islam nation is the highest nation and they shouldn't have to deal with anyone who doesn't belong to Islam nor congratulating them or have any connection with them. They are targeting to plant and grow their thoughts inside the heads of people with lower levels of the society, with low educational, cultural and social levels, which allow to maintain the violence phenomena and lead to destruction of the societies.

The research aim;

Highlighting the concept of integration, respecting and appreciating the others, example is the relation between Islamic and Chinese civilizations by introducing the great achievements of the Chinese civilization, and the level of integration between it and the Islamic civilization. The relation of affecting and being affected by is the strongest answer and reaction to those who adopt the extreme thinking.

The research hypothesis;

The flexibility and depth of Islamic civilization and its ability to cope with the other to produce currents, ideology and new scientific, artistic and architectural styles, all that has a huge effect on enriching this civilization.

The signs that prove that are all over earth in general, especially in china and particularly on the Asian side.